★ HOLLYWOOD GOSSIP ★

When Victor Mature completed the final scene for "Dangerous Mission,"—that's the Technicolor drama in which he co-stars with Piper Laurie, Vincent Price, William Bendix and Betta St. John—he confessed that he was particularly happy about two things: In "Dangerous Mission," he wears long pants and short hair while in his two previous films it was just reversed. He wore long hair and short skirts.

Rita Gam will co-star with Jeff Chandler and Jack Palance in "Sign of the Pagan" . . . Rock Hudson drew the top male role in "Bengal Rifles," originally intended for Tyrone Power . . . RKO signed Alvy Moore, the stage comic, for an important role in "Susan Slept Here" . . . Evelyn Keyes will star in "The Promise" to be produced by Gabriel Pascal in Italy . . . Adele Jergens plays the only feminine role in "Fireman Save My Child" . . . And Pal, he's the son of Lassic, will be seen in "A Bullet is Waiting," which stars Jean Simmons.

On the "Brigadoon" set, Gene Kelly and Van Johnson were teamed in a dance routine. This was a nostalgic bit of casting as it was 13 years ago that they appeared in the same musical number on Broadway in "Pal Joey." In "Brigadoon" the two share top honors with Cyd Charisse and Elaine Stewart.

Never could figure out why they change the titles on moving pictures, but here are a few changes that have been made recently. "Men of Iron" is now called "The Black Shield of Falworth." "The P.O.W. Story" has been changed to "Prisoner of War." "Beachhead" is now "Yellow Tomahawk."

"House in the Sea" will be released as "Highway Dragnet." And "Target Earth" has been re-titled "Killers From Space."

Here's an interesting item: While working on "Carnival Story," Technicolor drama which was filmed in Germany, Baroness Von Trotha met Jadin Wong, Chinese dancer who has a featured role in the Anne Baxter-Steve Cochran starrer. Having lived in Shanghai, the Baroness welcomed Miss Wong with a flowery greeting spoken in fluent Chinese. This amazed the popular dancer who replied in perfect English that she was born in Brooklyn, U.S.A.

Getting back to the Continent: Over in Paris they are waiting for Charles Boyer to complete his assignment in the Broadway production of "Kind Sir" so that he can play the role of Louis XV in the film, "Du Barry." In Dublin, a theatre chain is preparing new regulations controlling admission of children and banning all youngsters under seven years of age. And in Vienna, "Gone With The Wind" celebrated one year of a continuous, two-a-day showing, breaking all records.

Rosalind Russell and her husband, Fred Brisson, will reactivate their film company, Independent Artists, when the star heads for Hollywood this summer to star in "The Girl Rush."

The special effects crew working on Walt Disney's "Rob Roy" had to create a perfect mist for some of the battle scenes in the all-live action-Technicolor production filmed in Scotland. They discovered the best method for creating a non-irritating Scotch mist was to spray incense from the type of smoke-guns used by Bee-keepers.

Mary McCarty, nightclub singer and comedienne, who recently completed a top role opposite Jane Russell and Gilbert Roland in "The French Line," tells the story of the toughest audience she ever faced. It was in Kansas City. The club was packed and her routine came off perfectly. But the audience was extremely conservative with their applause. At first she thought she was slipping, but then the manager told her that the customers were all members of the Funeral Directors Association which was holding a convention in town.

Friends Influence Actor's Ability

The kind of an actor you are is founded on the kind of people you have known, says Robert Cummings, currently starred with Doris Day and Phil Silvers in the CinemaScope production "Lucky Me."

"An actor creating a character pattern draws on all the human contacts in his experience—the men he has met, lived with, fought with, liked or associated with in work or play. This is the material he works from consciously or unconsciously and the more extensive and varied it is the more true to life will be his performance.

"An actor in particular must be observant of faces and personalities of people," Bob continued, "and the more closely he has observed fellow humans, the greater his acting range."

Girls, Import(ant) News

Laurence Harvey, the brilliant 25-year-old star of England's stage and screen just signed to a term contract and a top role in "The Talisman," is not only very, very handsome, but unmarried. In the CinemaScope production of the Sir Walter Scott story of the Crusades, Harvey will play the romantic lead opposite Virginia Mayo.

Marilyn Erskine Is Seen and Heard

Marilyn Erskine, who stars as Ida Cantor in "The Eddie Cantor Story," is not only well known to motion picture audiences, but also to radio listeners.

Prior to her movie career Miss Erskine was heard regularly on such radio shows as "The Young Widder Brown," "David Harum," "Life Can Be Beautiful," "Laura Laighton," "Road of Life" and "Guiding Light." For a couple of years she was doing as many as thirty-five radio shows a week.

British Actress Speaks No English

Tessa Prendergast, sultry new film personality, will make her Hollywood film bow speaking only Fijian.

The Jamaica-born actress, appearing as one of Burt Lancaster's leading ladies in "His Majesty O'Keefe," plays the role of a native girl who speaks no English.

Miss Prendergast has worked in several British films and was appearing at a London night club when signed for this Technicolor production.
